Purpose Statement

The purpose of this department is to give the student a basic understanding of human behavior and the nature of society. Study in this department will allow the student to acquire knowledge of basic theoretical concepts of psychology and sociology from a biblical perspective. Programs offered in the department are a Bachelor of Science or a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in counseling, criminal justice, psychology, and sociology. A minor is offered in behavioral science, criminal justice, and sports psychology.

Program Learning Outcomes

1. Students will display critical thinking as they integrate psychological principles and theories with the Bible.
2. Students will utilize basic biopsychosocial documentation, assessment, counseling skills, case reporting, and clinical documentation including treatment plans and progress notes.
3. Students will be exposed to applied learning experiences in behavioral sciences.

4. Students will demonstrate APA writing skills and summarize the results of research.
5. Students will demonstrate theoretical frameworks to understand the causes of crime and criminalization, and use those to construct prevention practices and crime enforcement approaches.

BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE DOUBLE MAJOR

It is possible to double major within the Behavioral Science Department. One major must be taken from the psychology area (psychology or counseling) and the other major must be taken from a sociology area (sociology or criminal justice). Students will choose one concentration from each chosen major (aside from sociology). Students may not choose two concentrations in one major.

BACHELOR OF ARTS AND BACHELOR OF SCIENCE

The requirement for a double major is 69 hours in the department. Students will complete the behavioral science core for one of their majors (15 hours), then complete a concentration for each major (15 hours each) along with electives for each major (12 hours each). All requirements for the first major as well as the second major must be met. If there is an overlap between the requirements for the two majors, additional classes must be taken in the department for a total of 27 additional hours for the second major.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS DOUBLE MAJOR

Students may double major in one of the major areas of the Behavioral Science Department and another department. Areas most often chosen are Business, and Communication. These areas are particularly attractive because there is some overlap between requirements for these majors and graduation can still normally be accomplished within a four-year period.

BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE MINORS

Behavioral Science Minor

The requirement for a minor in behavioral science is 21 hours in the department, including:

One of the following:

- PSY 1100 Introduction to Psychology
- PSY 2100 Introduction to Counseling

- SOC 2340 Introduction to Criminal Justice

Two of the following:

- PSY 3260 Biblical Psychology
- PSY 3380 Theories of Personality
- SOC 3560 Victimology

Additional requirements include 12 elective hours in the department.

Criminal Justice Minor

The requirement for a minor in criminal justice is 21 hours in the department, including:

- PSY 3260 Biblical Psychology
- SOC 2340 Introduction to Criminal Justice
- SOC 3560 Victimology

Additional requirements include 12 elective hours in the department.

Sports Psychology Minor

The requirement for a minor in criminal justice is 21 hours in the department, including:

- PSY 2170 Abnormal Psychology
- PSY 3300 Sports Psychology
- PSY 3550 Health Psychology
- PSY 3600 Motivation and Emotion

Additional requirements include 9 elective hours in the department.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES

BHS 1600 Introduction to Leadership

This is a practical course which is intended to prepare students to lead with greater character, knowledge and skill. This course is designed around the 360-degree leadership model and concept. This course will help students discover their unique style of leadership, their own personal values (inward), how their strengths and gaps influence team success (across), and their personal challenges and opportunities when following those in authority (up). This course will address leading others toward a better future (down). Finally, students will learn to translate these discoveries into reflective practices. This is a 1 credit hour class and also serves as a prerequisite for all student leadership positions at Grace.

BHS 2200 Introduction to American Government

This introduces students to how the political system in America functions. It focuses on the actual workings of the American government and starts with the cultural and constitutional contexts of American politics. (Home department–POS. Register as POS 2200.) Three hours.

A study of mental and emotional disorders, their symptomatology, classification, and methods of treatment. Special attention is given to a Christian approach to mental health. Three hours.

PSY 2330 Family Systems

This course will examine the family from a systems approach for the purpose of understanding how the family operates and how dysfunction occurs. Knowledge gained from this course will be useful in understanding and analyzing what often occurs in other systems (workplaces, churches, schools, etc.). Family counseling will also be an aspect of this class. Three hours.

PSY 2360 Child and Adolescent Psychology

A psychological study covering the life span from early childhood to the adult stage. This course stresses practical applications for working in family, educational, and counseling settings. Three hours.

PSY 2420 Organizational Psychology

This course is specifically designed for students interested in Psychology and the Professional Communication major offered through the communication department. This course will focus on the application of social psychology to organizational settings. Topics covered will include motivation of workers; group decision-making; leadership styles; career management, and organizational development. Class format will consist of experiential exercises combined with lecture, discussion, and team activities. Three hours.

PSY 2600 Multicultural Psychology

This course studies the relationship between identity development and primary culture(s). A variety of ethnic, social, religious, and cultural group norms are considered along with an examination of the extent of influence these may have on the individual. The environmental factors that impact people such as global markets, Internet collaborations, and multicultural neighborhoods are examined. Three hours.

PSY 2700 Psychology of Religion

An overview of the research into the psychology of religion as it relates to biological, social, moral, and personal behavior. This course provides a theoretical framework for assessing religion, for exploring the development and role of personal faith through the lifespan, and for understanding the various aspects of religion such as conversion, transformation, mysticism, health, and psychotheology. Prerequisite: PSY 3260. Three hours.

PSY 2880 Life Span Development

A study of the basic principles and theories of human development with special emphasis given to the determinants of the human life span from the beginning of life through infancy, childhood, adolescence and adulthood to death and dying. Emphasis is placed on the transitional life processes as they occur at each stage, and attention is given to physical, intellectual, social and personality development in each stage of the life span. Three hours.

PSY 3100 Learning and Behavior

This course will examine historical and current theories that explain how different types of learning provide the foundation for most behavior. Designed to apply learning theory and principles to the presentation of learning, it illustrates how learning principles operate in both animals and people. Reflecting the latest research, the study of learning theories helps solve practical relationship problems and explain everyday behaviors. Three hours.

PSY 3200 Grief and Loss

This course will focus on the human experience of grief and loss that occur across the lifespan. Current theories and research will be examined, as well as the evidence-based practices of grief therapy. Three hours

PSY 3260 Biblical Psychology

This course will examine the relationship between the fields of psychology and theology. A theory of “integration” will be presented, along with discussions concerning specific “psychological” topics (i.e. self-esteem, etc.) from a biblical vantage point. Three hours.

PSY 3270 Psychology of Women

This course will cover a wide range of topics pertaining to women from a Biblical worldview. The goal of this course is to look at common problems experienced by women over the course of their lifespan from a theoretical, sociological and biological perspective. In this course students will critically evaluate gender differences and similarities in personality and behavior. Three hours.

PSY 3300 Sports Psychology

This course is designed to help students both learn and then apply practical as well as theoretical information as it relates to the psychology of sport. The class will work to provide an understanding of how personality, self-concept, self-esteem, self-efficacy and other psychological characteristics relate to participation and performance in sport and physical activities. The class will also investigate the impact of stress, motivation, goal-setting, leadership and imagery on performance. The student will also learn common struggles and intervention strategies in working with athletes and recreational exercisers to enhance performance and participation. Three hours.

PSY 3380 Theories of Personality

An introduction to the major theories of personality and how it develops, including psychoanalysis, humanistic, existential, and behavioristic approaches. Three hours.

PSY 3440 Process and Techniques of Counseling

This course develops a theoretical base for evaluating human problems within a biblical framework. Once this has been accomplished, practical techniques will be discussed to help counselors structure the counseling session and implement change. Three hours.

PSY 3550 Health Psychology

Students will develop an appreciation of the interaction and relationship between biological and social factors that influence one's physical health and health behaviors. This course will examine lifestyle factors such as diet, exercise, stress, substance abuse and individual motivational factors. Additionally, this course will assess how psychological research, theories and principles apply to health promotion, health care issues, and chronic illness. Three hours.

PSY 3600 Motivation and Emotion

This course is a study of the process of motivation and emotion and how they impact behavior and choices that people make every day. This course will study the research on the psychological and physiological aspects of motivation and emotion and the impact that those aspects have on behavior. The course will provide the student with a framework to view motivation and emotion that can help process difficult questions about human behavior such as “why are some people more emotional than others?”, and “is it possible to create environments that increase the motivation of another human?”. Three hours.

PSY 4000 Group Techniques of Counseling

This course will examine the history, theories and methods of group counseling. Students will learn about the applications of group psychotherapy through group discussions and role-playing demonstrations. This course will further examine the roles, behaviors and therapeutic factors utilized in a variety of group settings. Prerequisite PSY3440. Three hours.

PSY 4040 Psychology of Aging

What is it like to grow “old”? How can you better understand those aging around you? What can you do to make the most of your own “golden years”? The purpose of this course is not only to discuss facts and findings about the various aspects of the aging process (psychological, physical, cognitive, social, etc.), but also to explore how these processes are a factor of the dynamic interaction of individual factors (personality, lifestyle) and environmental factors (family, neighborhood, culture) across time. In this way, this course takes a developmental approach to the study of the psychology of aging. An emphasis on active learning, reflection, and application bring course concepts into “real life.” Three hours

PSY 4170 Psychological Measurement

The measurement of human behavior with psychological instruments. An introduction to tests of intelligence, achievement, personality, and interest, emphasizing test construction, administration, and validation. Three hours.

PSY 4260 Therapeutic Play

This course provides an overview of principles of therapeutic play and play therapy including history, theories, techniques, applications, and skills. The content focuses on basic therapeutic skill development within the context of ethical and cultural diversity sensitive practice. Attention is given to understanding the role of therapeutic play and play therapy in the context of the participant’s clinical responsibilities in multiple settings including: schools, counseling clinics, and/or medical facilities. Participants learn strategies for engaging children in art, music, and other alternative therapeutic strategies to assist children and teens in improving their coping skills and ability to respond to stress in a healthy manner. Three hours

PSY 4280 Child Life: A Scope of Practice

This course fulfills all of the Associate of Child Life Professionals (ACLP) requirements for the Child Life course. A course exploring the hospitalized child and family. Psychosocial and developmental needs of infants, children, adolescents and families in health care context, with a focus on the role and interventions of the child life specialist. Applies theories of child development and family systems to effective child life practice in hospitals. Three hours.

PSY 4300 Clinical Practice/Senior Seminar

This course is designed to be the capstone for a psychology/counseling student at Grace College. As a capstone course, it will serve to provide a broader context about both the science and field of psychology. This course will also focus on what it means to be a psychologist, the current issues and conflicts of psychology, and future directions in the field. This seminar course will address the importance of evidence-based practice and practical applications to the field of psychology. Three hours.

SOCIOLOGY

SOC 1100 Introduction to Sociology

In this course, students will look at sociology and how it contributes to an understanding of social life, culture, deviance, and policy. This class will explore societal responses from a historical and contemporary framework. Among the topics are agents of socialization, theories on human development, group characteristics, sociocultural change, and today's current challenges for professionals. This class will explore the evolution of politics and political decision making through systems of stratification and exploration in inequality in the United States. Students will utilize scientific rigor to understand how to assess and manage opportunities and challenges within the sociological profession by observing them through a dimensional assessment. Three hours.

SOC 2100 Marriage and Family

A study of the family as a basic social institution with its cultural variations. Emphasis is upon premarital and marital factors that contribute to a successful marriage or family disorganization. Christian ideals for wholesome courtship and family living are stressed. Three hours.

SOC 2140 Social Problems and Pathology

This course provides an analysis of a section of major social problems related to social inequalities, problems of social institutions, and behavioral deviance, and global social problems we face today and the pathology of group relations. Three hours.

SOC 2340 Introduction to Criminal Justice

This course introduces students to the essentials of criminal justice and the most significant issues in today's American criminal justice system. Students will learn the true roles of the police, courts, and corrections and develop an understanding of the complex ways in which they work together. Information on criminal justice careers will help students learn about the meaning of criminal justice to those who work in the field and will provide useful information that can aid career choices. Three hours.

SOC 2400 American Corrections

This course provides an in-depth introduction to the American correctional system and its role within the broader field of criminal justice. Students will explore the history, philosophy, and contemporary practices of corrections, including sentencing, probation, parole, inmate culture, prison administration, and community-based alternatives to incarceration.

Through interactive discussions, case studies, and applied projects, students will examine correctional policies and procedures, review sentencing guidelines, and analyze how correctional decisions impact individuals and communities. Learners will gain hands on-experience by creating parole orders, evaluating offender rehabilitation plans, and deciding on future criminal justice directions for individuals under supervision. The course also emphasizes ethical decision-making, inmate rights, institutional policies, and the balance between punishment and rehabilitation within the correctional system. Three hours.

SOC 2420 Criminal Investigation

This course will provide a comprehensive introduction to the principles, techniques, and procedures of criminal investigation. Students will explore the roles and responsibilities of investigators in identifying, gathering, preserving, and analyzing evidence. Topics include crime scene management, interviewing and interrogation, forensic science applications, legal considerations and the ethical challenges faced by investigators. Emphasis is placed on biblical integration to critical thinking, problem-solving, and the incorporation of modern technologies in solving crimes. By the end of the course, students will gain practical knowledge of investigative processes and understand the complexities involved in solving various types of criminal cases, such as property crimes, violent crimes, and cybercrimes. This course combines lectures, case studies, and hands-on activities to prepare students for further studies or careers in criminal justice. Three hours.

SOC 2440 Criminal Procedures

This course examines the laws, procedures, and traditions of the criminal justice system. Students will explore current events in the media and issues in today's American criminal justice system with an emphasis on procedural law. This course is designed to provide students with a collective overview of constitutional rights and the related responsibility of police. Students will explore roles of the law enforcement, courts, and corrections and develop an understanding of the complex ways in which they work together. Special emphasis will be placed on amendments to the Constitution as related to the rights of the individual. Three hours

SOC 2600 Forensic Interviewing

Instruction and skill development in interviewing, note-taking, and report writing in the criminal justice field. This course will prepare students to conduct interviews of witnesses, victims, and suspects. It will demonstrate how to organize information into effective written reports. Special consideration will be given in the area of child and adolescent interviews. Upon successful completion of the course students will be able to conduct interviews, collect information admissible in court, demonstrate appropriate note-taking skills and create reports that convey the pertinent information. Three hours.

SOC 2650 Evidence

This course provides an introduction to evidence in the criminal justice system. The primary goal of this course is to develop a general understanding of evidence in an effective criminal justice system. Necessary trade-off must be made between the protection of individual rights and judicial efficiency. Understanding this trade-off greatly to the students' appreciation of the dynamics of the criminal justice system. It is important to note that the general theme of this course involves the delicate balance between community interests and individual rights that evidence collection decision-making requires. We will explore this theme by examining evidence in some detail, focusing on the rules of evidence and the fundamental rights of people accused of crimes. This requires an understanding of the core elements of the criminal justice system: police, courts, and corrections. Prerequisite: SOC 2340. Three hours.

SOC 2700 Crime and Punishment

In this course, students will look at the evolution of the criminal justice system from the criminal acts to those who commit them. This class will explore societal responses to crime from a historical and contemporary framework. Among the topics are problem-oriented policing, terrorism, justice during the Civil War, incarceration trends, and today's current crime challenges. This class will explore the evolution of crime through patterns of crime and punishment during selected periods of time. Students will utilize scientific rigor and understand how to assess and manage opportunities and challenges within the criminal justice system by observing them through a historical assessment. Three hours.

SOC 3010 State and Local Government

This is an examination of the structure and interplay between state, county, and local governments. Issues such as social security, zoning, welfare, public health, and the environment will be examined from the point of view of how they originate at the local levels yet how they exist and grow within federal guidelines. (Home department POS – Register as POS 3010) For Criminal Justice and Sociology majors only. Three hours.

SOC 3130 Business Law I

Basic legal principles which control modern business transactions. Deals with such topics as contracts, agencies, employment, negotiable instruments, property, and sales and business relations with the government. (Home department–BUS. Register as BUS 3130.) Three hours.

SOC 3220 Principles and Practices of Prayer

Students will examine the teaching of the Scriptures on the subject of prayer with a view to discovering the absolute necessity of a vital prayer experience in the life of the man or woman of God and in the life of the Church. Urgency, consistency, and effectiveness of prayer will all be discussed as well as practical guidance for fostering these. Significant time will be spent in the practice of prayer. (Home department – MIS. Register as MIS 3220) Three hours.

SOC 3230 Substance Use and Abuse

This course is designed to give the student a theoretical and practical understanding of addictive disorders. At the completion of this course the student will be able to define several key concepts relative to addictions and the disease of chemical dependency, have a workable knowledge of the concepts of withdrawal tolerance and drug interactions as they relate to commonly abused drugs, and have gained a general knowledge of concepts, methods, and techniques in the area of addictive disorders, substance abuse, and/or chemical dependency. Three hours.

SOC 3360 Juvenile Delinquency

This course will provide an extensive overview of the principles and concepts surrounding Juvenile Delinquency. This course will examine the nature and extent of Juvenile Delinquency, Theories of Delinquency, causes of delinquency, and how to control and prevent delinquency. Three hours.

SOC 3370 Criminology

This course is an introductory study of Criminology as it relates to the Criminal Justice field. Students will delve into the study of crime, criminal behavior, and the criminal justice system, gaining a deep understanding of the factors that contribute to criminal activities and the societal responses to them. Throughout the course, students will examine key theories of criminology, including classical, biological, psychological, and sociological perspectives. Students will analyze the impact of social, economic, and environmental factors on criminal behavior, and critically evaluate the effectiveness of various crime prevention and intervention strategies. Three hours.

SOC 3460 Police and American Society

The role of law enforcement in society as it relates to local, state, and federal jurisdictions. Three hours.

SOC 3470 Homeland Security

This course will introduce students to the fundamental components of terrorism and homeland security as well as their importance and interrelated duties and relationships.
